FOREWORD

This record of the Presidential vetoes of legislation enacted by Congress is intended as an aid in the study of the legislative relationship existing between the executive and legislative branches of Government. The material contained herein is arranged chronologically by Congresses and administrations in which the vetoes occurred. The list includes vetoes and any action taken thereon between the years 1889 and 1952 (51st through the 82nd Cong.).

Record of Presidential vetoes prior to 1889 may be found in Senate Miscellaneous Document 53, Forty-ninth Congress, second session; and House Document 493, Seventieth Congress, second session. A numerical summary of bills vetoed by each President since the beginning of our present form of government is given on page IV.

The Constitution provides that the bill and veto message of the President shall be first returned to the House in which the bill originated. Further information with regard to subsequent action on each bill may be found in the proceedings of the body in which the bill was originally introduced as published in the Congressional Record and indexed under the bill number in the History of Bills and Resolutions in the Record Index. The originating body may fail to take action or may sustain the veto, in which case no further action is required by the other body. However, if the veto is overridden by the originating body, the proceedings of the other body, to which the veto is then messaged, is examined for final disposition of the legislation. When both bodies override the veto the bill then becomes law without the signature of the President.

SIXTY-SECOND CONGRESS

April 4, 1911, to March 3, 1913

FIRST SESSION

H. R. 4413.—An act to place on the free list agricultural implements, cotton bagging, cotton ties, leather, boots and shoes, fence wire, meats, cereals, flour, bread, timber, lumber, sewing machines, salt, and other articles (S. Doc. 102).

August 18, 1911, House sustained the President's veto by vote of 227 to 126 (Cong. Rec., p. 4174).

H. R. 11019.—An act to reduce duties on wool and manufactures of wool.

August 18, 1911, House sustained the President's veto (S. Doc. 101) by a vote of 227 to 129 (Cong. Rec., p. 4170).

H. R. 12812.—An act to reduce duties on manufactures of cotton.

No attempt was made to override the President's veto; the message (S. Doc. 108) was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, August 22, 1911 (Cong. Rec., p. 4393). Mr. Underwood had the following to say in regard to the veto:

> Mr. Speaker, the Constitution requires two-thirds vote in this House to override the President's veto. The Democratic Party lacks a two-thirds vote in the membership on this side of the House. On the wool bill, some patriotic and progressive Republicans voted with this side of the House [applause on the Democratic side] to pass the bill, and we thank them for their support. But it is evident, Mr. Speaker, that we have not the votes in this House at this time to override the President's veto, and I therefore move that the message be printed and with accompanying papers referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

H. J. Res. 14.—To admit the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico as States into the Union upon an equal footing with the original States.

No attempt was made to override the President's veto; the message (H. Doc. 106) was referred to the Committee on Territories, August 15, 1911 (Cong. Rec., pp. 3964–3966).

House voted to override the veto (H. Doc. 903), August 13, 1912; yeas, 174; nays, 80 (Cong. Rec., p. 10845).

Senate sustained the veto, August 16, 1912; yeas, 39; nays, 36 (Cong. Rec., p. 11081).

Instead of such a measure of thorough and genuine revision, based on full information of the facts, and with rates properly adjusted to all the different stages of the industry, there is now presented for my approval H. R. 22195, "An act to reduce the duties on wool and the manufacture of wool," a bill identical with the one which I vetoed in August 1911 (H. R. 11019), before the report of the Tariff Board had been made.

From the President's veto message of August 13, 1912.

H. R. 24023.—An act making annual appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913.

August 15, 1912, House sustained the President's veto (H. Doc. 910); yeas, 147; nays, 107 (Cong. Rec., p. 11034). See H. R. 26321.

H. R. 26321.—An act making annual appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, and for other purposes.

August 21, 1912, House voted to override the veto (H. Doc. 910); yeas, 154; nays, 53 (Cong. Rec., p. 11478).

Senate sustained the veto, August 21, 1912; yeas, 34; nays, 27 (Cong. Rec., p. 11457).

President Taft vetoed H. R. 24023, "An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, and for other purposes," on August 15, 1912, during the second session of the Sixty-second Congress. He objected to the bill because it provided for a tenure of 7 years for persons employed in the classified civil service at Washington and the abolition of the Commerce Court. An identical act, H. R. 2632, except for the tenure of office, was passed by both Houses and presented to the President, who vetoed this second bill in the following message:

To the House of Representatives:

I return herewith H. R. 26321, an act entitled "An act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, and for other purposes," without my approval because the bill still contains in section 9 a provision for the repeal of the act establishing the Commerce Court.

My objections to this repeal are stated in my message returning without my approval H. R. 24023 communicated to the House of Representatives on August 15 last.

WM. H. TAFT.

This second message was forwarded to the House on August 21, 1912. The House passed the bill over the President's veto—yeas, 154; nays, 53; but the Senate sustained the veto—yeas, 34; nays, 27; H. R. 26371, objectionable section eliminated, was introduced immediately and approved 2 days later, August 23, 1912, by the President.

H. J. Res. 178.—A joint resolution to create a commission to investigate relative to the establishment of permanent military camp grounds at Anniston, Ala.

No attempt was made to override the President's veto; the message (H. Doc. 657) was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, March 29, 1912 (Cong. Rec., p. 4067).

H. R. 7629.—To amend the penal laws of the United States.

The Speaker laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States (H. Doc. 802) which was read:

To the House of Representatives:

I return herewith without my signature H. R. 7629, entitled "An act to amend the penal laws of the United States." I direct attention to the fact that in embodying in the present amendatory act the opening portion of existing section 245 of the Criminal Code an obvious error has occurred. The phrase "to any other State, Territory, or District of the United States, or place noncontiguous to but subject to the jurisdiction thereof" which immediately follows the words "jurisdiction thereof" in line 12, should be taken out of its present position and inserted immediately after the words "jurisdiction thereof" in line 10. I have had the change definitely indicated by appropriate pencil marks.

WOODROW WILSON.

Mr. BLANTON. There is nothing improper in the President of the United States correcting the English of the House or Senate, is there?

Mr. WALSH. Not at all; not when their English is incorrect.

The House accepted the President's suggestions, and H. R. 14384 was passed in lieu of the original bill (Cong. Rec., p. 8280).

DISAPPROVALS (POCKETED)

Shortly after the adjournment of the Seventy-third Congress, first session, on June 18, 1934, the White House issued the following statement relative to the action taken by the President on certain bills upon which the time limit for action did not expire until after the adjournment of the session, viz:

> In the past, it has been customary in most cases involving vetoes, for the President to withhold his signature, thereby, in effect, allowing the bill to die without becoming a law.
> The President has desired, however, to take a more affirmative position than this, feeling that in the case of most legislation, reasons for definite disapproval should be given. Therefore, he has written on the copy of each bill the words "Disapproved and signature withheld" and has appended, in every case, a brief statement giving the reason or reasons for disapproval.
>
> White House statement, June 26, 27, 28, 29, 1934.

VETO MESSAGES RECEIVED FROM THE PRESIDENT DURING RECESS

The Vice President laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Senate, which was read and ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, May 7, 1936.

Hon. JOHN N. GARNER,
President of the Senate.

MY DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: On Friday, April 24, 1936, the Committee on Enrolled Bills of the Senate presented to the President of the United States the enrolled bills (S. 713) granting jurisdiction of the Court of Claims to hear the case of David A. Wright and (S. 929) for the relief of the Southern Products Co., which had passed both Houses of Congress and been signed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President of the Senate.

The Senate, at 3:25 p. m. Monday, May 4, 1936, took a recess until 12 noon on Thursday, May 7, 1936.

During the interim the President of the United States sent by messenger two messages addressed to the Senate, each dated May 5, 1936, giving his reasons for not approving, respectively, Senate bill 713 and Senate bill 929. The Senate not being in session on the last day which the President had for the return of these bills under the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, in order to protect the interests of the Senate so that it might have the opportunity to reconsider the bills, I accepted the messages, and I now present to you the President's veto messages, with the accompanying papers, for disposition by the Senate.

Sincerely yours,

EDWIN A. HALSEY,
Secretary of the Senate.
